Dear Dr. Hirota:

Public Health Service policy requires that support for research carried out in countries outside of the United States shall be limited to three years, except under very unusual circumstances. Thus, we encourage grantees to seek continued support for their programs within their own national resources. It is not intended or desired that the United States Public Health Service should provide for the support of individual foreign research programs on a permanent basis. We have recently reviewed your grant GM 08293-03, and find that two more years of previously recommended support will be made available to you provided adequate funds are appropriated, which will provide you with a total of five years of support. We take this opportunity to bring this policy to your attention so that you may have ample time to seek support from sources other than the United States Public Health Service.

It is a pleasure to have been able to extend support for your highly regarded program. I hope you will be successful in obtaining continuing support from other sources in order to permit your research to develop to your own satisfaction.

Sincerely yours,

Carl R. Brewer, Ph. D.
Chief, Research Grants Branch
