LADIES' AID SOCIETY.

There is a Ladies' Aid Society for St. Luke's connected with each of the different Parishes of the City. Their object is to solicit and furnish support for the Hospital in every possible way. They have also formed visiting committees, who will visit regularly the Hospital. To their kind and devoted interest the Hospital is indebted for securing memberships and contributions of flowers, provisions, articles for use in the house, reading matter, etc.

Donations of money for St. Luke's Hospital should be forwarded to C. B. Kountze, Treasurer, Denver, Colo.

For further information, apply to Geo. H. Cornell, Superintendent St. Luke's Hospital, Denver, Colo.

SUPPORT OF THE HOSPITAL.

The Hospital is supported by voluntary contributions from those who are charitably disposed without regard to the religious body to which they may belong.

These contributions may be made under any of the following heads, viz:

- 1st. Endowments.
- 2d. Donations of money.
- 3d. Subscriptions to the Hospital Fund.
- 4th. Gifts of articles for use in Hospital; clothing, food, medicines, furniture, etc., etc.
- 5th. Endowment of Beds. $300.00 will support a bed one year and will allow the endower to name its occupants. The bed to be occupied the year immediately following the donation. $3,000.00 will endow a free bed during one life.
- 6th. Bequests of money and real estate for the general purposes of the Hospital.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL,

DENVER, COLORADO.

This Institution, unsurpassed for its beauty of location and surroundings, and with well furnished apartments, is now open for the reception and care of those who are suffering from any medical or surgical diseases.

Situated upon an eminence, it is sufficiently distant from the city to enjoy the purest mountain air, while at the same time it commands all the advantages and conveniences of the city. The building was originally erected as a first-class hotel, and at considerable expense has been fitted up with all the requisites necessary for a Sanitarium and Hospital. The view from the Hospital is the most varied and beautiful that can be found in the whole State of Colorado. To the east, where, only a quarter of a century ago, there stood nothing to mark the Western progress of civilization, now the busy and prosperous city of Denver, "the Queen City of the Plains," with its smoking furnaces and lofty spires, occupies the valley below and the side of the adjacent hill. To the west, and only a few miles away, as far as the eye can reach to the north and to the south, the Rocky Mountains rear their magnificent peaks, crowned with perpetual snow, in bold relief against the western sky, a scene for sublimity and grandeur unrivalled in the world. On all other sides, extending for miles away until lost in the distance, can be seen the rolling prairies.

CHURCH DISCIPLINE.

Although the Hospital is under the direction of the Episcopal Church, yet members of other bodies are received and they may be visited by their own spiritual directors if so they wish. The resident Chaplain says daily prayers to which the inmates are invited, though their attendance is voluntary. The Chaplain will be ever ready to offer either religious consolation, or to render any kindly service which may be in his power, to any of the inmates. The Hospital is not intended for that class of patients who would be received at the County Hospital, but a charge is made of $7.00 a week, and more, according to accommodations required.

The attending and consulting Physicians and Surgeons are among the most prominent in the medical profession in Denver, and all the best and most approved medical and surgical treatment will be carried out in every case, under their direct supervision and control.

Dr. Edmund C. Rivers, of the University Hospital of Baltimore, has been appointed Resident Physician, and will be always in the house in case of an emergency, and will have entire charge of the sick in the absence of the attending physicians.

The dietary and general regime is under the immediate direction and supervision of the medical staff, and every effort will be made, and every precaution taken to render the Hospital thoroughly efficacious, not only to restore those actually attacked by disease, but to recuperate those who are suffering from debility and nervous prostration.

Considering that the Hospital will be largely used as a Sanitarium, the board of directors have decided that persons suffering from contagious diseases are not to be admitted.

The nurses employed are from eastern Hospitals, and are all experienced and trained for their responsible duties, and it is intended in due time to establish a school for the proper training of nurses, so that the public may enjoy the inestimable benefit of having within call their valuable assistance when needed.

An ambulance for the conveyance of patients to and from the Hospital is always in readiness, and can be obtained by telegraph or telephone to the Superintendent. The need for such an institution as St. Luke's Hospital is greatly felt, and upon the efforts of its officers to make it a success, we invoke the blessings of Almighty God, while no labor will be spared to place it among the first of its kind in the land. Thousands of invalids are coming every year to Colorado to regain their health and vigor. No other state in the union presents to the tourist and the sick such a diversity of resources. Here nature has lavishly bestowed her richest and most pleasing gifts. Health giving springs flow spontaneously from the earth for the healing of all, while the climate has no equal in the world.

Enjoying, as we do, so many and great advantages over similar institutions in the state, we can offer to all who need a quiet homelike retreat, more actual comforts and pleasures in their surroundings and better medical attention than can be obtained west of Chicago or St. Louis.

Application for admission should be made to the Superintendent, the Bishop of Colorado, or to any member of the Executive Committee.

GEO. H. CORNELL,

Superintendent St. Luke's Hospital, Denver, Colo.
