PRINTER TO THE LYCEUM MEDICUM.

REGULATIONS.

THE LYCEUM MEDICUM LONDINENSE, was instituted for the advancement of medical knowledge, January 25, 1785, under the patronage of Dr. Fordyce and Mr. Hunter, when the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to :

I.

No gentleman can be elected a member of the Society who is not a student or practitioner in some of the branches of medicine.

II.

The Society shall consist of honorary, corresponding, and ordinary members.

III.

The honorary members shall consist of teachers of the different branches of medicine in London; and shall be limited to six in number.

IV.

The corresponding members shall consist of public teachers, and of physicians and surgeons to public charities.

V.

The ordinary members shall be divided into three classes.

The first class shall be composed of such gentlemen as have taken a degree in physic, are members of the the surgeons or apothecaries company, or are established in practice in surgery, pharmacy, or chemistry.

Members of the second class must have attended an hospital, one course of lectures on anatomy, and the practice of physic.

The third class shall consist of those who have only entered upon a course of medical studies.

VI.

The members of the two first classes shall be required to read to the Society, dissertations on some subject connected with medicine, in the order of their names upon the list.

VII.

- The members of the third class shall have no vote in the Society; but when qualified, shall be considered as members of the second class.

VIII.

- The members of the second class, when qualified, shall, upon paying an additional half-guinea, be admitted as member of the first class.

IX.

The meetings of the Society, after the present session of 1793-4, shall be held at Dr. Baillie's Theatre, in Windmill-street; and shall commence, annually, on the second Friday in October, and be continued on every succeeding Friday, until the beginning of May.

X.

At each meeting, the president shall take the chair at half past eight o'clock; and adjourn the Society precisely at eleven.

XI.

The business shall be conducted in the following order:

The minutes of the former meeting are to be read.

The names of the members to be called over, and fines collected.

Certificates, proposing new members, to be received and read.

New members to be balloted for.

Visitors to be introduced.

The president shall then inquire for medical news.

At half past nine the dissertation is to be read and discussed.

At five minutes before eleven the list of members is again to be called.

XII.

No business relative to the private concerns of the Society can be brought forward at the general meetings.

An extraordinary meeting may be moved for at any time; specifying for what purpose such meeting is convened. If the motion be seconded and agreed to by a majority of the Society, the meeting shall take place on the succeeding Wednesday.

Every motion made and seconded, unless withdrawn, must be entered on the minutes of the Society, with the names of those who have made and seconded it.

Every member of the first class, after the discussion of his paper, shall be exempted from writing papers in future; and after the session subsequent to that in which his paper has been read, from all fines for non-attendance.

The author of every dissertation discussed in the Society, shall, within one month after its discussion, deposit a correct copy of it in the library, under the penalty of one guinea.

Members of the first class who have not written dissertations, and the members of the second, are liable to the usual fines for absenting themselves from this meeting.

LAWs.

PRESIDENTS.

THE presidents are to be four in number; elected annually, by ballot, from the members of the first class, on the first Friday in November. The same persons are not eligible, as presidents, for two successive years.

The presidents are to take the chair in rotation, according to seniority.

In the absence of the president, for the evening, the next in order is to take the chair. If all the presidents are absent, the chair is to be taken by the senior member present.

TREASURER.

The president who shall have the greatest number of votes as president, shall be treasurer for the year, and shall be responsible for the sums received.

ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

The members of the Society are elected by ballot; and the approbation of two-thirds of the members present, is necessary for their admission.

The candidates for each class are to be balloted for collectively; but, in case of a deficiency of suffrages for either of the classes, each member of that class shall be balloted for separately.

The name of any person desirous of becoming a member of the Society, is to be presented to the president, in a letter, signed by at least two members; and he is to be balloted for at the second meeting subsequent to that on which he was proposed.

Members proposed, are to have the liberty of being introduced as visitors till balloted for.

Every member liable to fines is required to furnish the secretary with his address, and with every change of his address, under a penalty of five shillings.

HONORARY AND CORRESPONDING MEMBERS.

Honorary and corresponding members, have the privilege of attending the meetings of the Society.

ORDINARY MEMBERS.

Every ordinary member, upon his admission, after subscribing his name to the regulations of the Society, and paying the admission fees, must be introduced in form to the president.

Any member withdrawing his name from the books of the Society, cannot be re-admitted

A member going into the country, must notify his intention to the secretary, otherwise he is liable to the ordinary penalties for non-attendance.

VISITORS.

The president for the evening shall have a power of introducing any number of visitors: the member, whose paper is under discussion, two; and every other member, one; by delivering on the preceding evening the names of those whom they wish to introduce, in writing, to the president, during the private business. Tickets, with the visitors' name, signed by the president, are then to be given out; which must be produced by the visitors on their admission, and their names read to the Society.

On the first meeting of every session, every member may introduce a visitor without a ticket.

No gentleman can be introduced, as a visitor, oftener than three times in a season, without the approbation of the Society.

MEDICAL NEWS.

Medical news is to consist of cases and observations on any subject connected with medicine. All cases, and observations, which are sufficiently interesting, are to be entered, in a book kept for that purpose, by the secretary.

The Society shall appoint a committee to examine the cases and observations upon their minutes, with a power to send such as they think proper to Dr. Simmons, to be published in his periodical medical work, entitled Medical Facts and Observations; with an official letter from the secretary; the authors giving their consent.

PAPERS,

May be written on any subject connected with medicine, which has not been previously treated of during that season. Each author must inform the president of the subject which he has chosen, a fortnight, at least, before the paper is given in.

Each dissertation is to be read by the author, immediately after the medical news, on the evening in which it is presented; and on the ensuing evening by the president, in order to be discussed; provided that the discussion of the former paper be finished, and the author present. No paper can be discussed in the absence of the author.

There shall be always two papers before the Society, for discussion.

If the author of the paper under discussion is unable to attend his duty in the Society, he shall endeavour to procure the next member, whose paper has been read, to attend in his stead; but if

after the person subsequent to that in which his paper has been read,

they are both absent, the former becomes liable to a fine of five shillings.

Every member of the first class, after the discussion, of his paper, shall be exempted from writing papers in future, and from all fines for non-attendance.

The author of every dissertation discussed in the Society, shall deposit a correct copy of it in the library, under the penalty of one guinea, within one month after its discussion.

COMMITTEES.

The presidents for the time being, and those of the preceding year, shall constitute a standing committee, for the purpose of auditing the treasurer's accounts, managing the funds, regulating the library of the Society; any three of whom may act.

To constitute an extraordinary committee on any private business, it is necessary that one president, two members of the first, and four, either of the first or of the second class, should be present.

Committees are open to all members.

SECRETARY.

The secretary shall be annually elected by ballot, at the time of the election of presidents: he shall have a salary of £10 per annum; and during his office shall not be considered as a member of the Society.

In the absence of the secretary, any member of the second class may be appointed, by the president, to perform his duty for that meeting.

FEES OF ADMISSION.

Gentlemen admitted into the first class are to pay one guinea upon their admission.

Gentlemen admitted into the second and third classes are to pay half a guinea; and, when received into the first class, are to pay an additional half-guinea.

All members, elected into the Society, are to sign the obligation-book, pay the admission fees, and be introduced to the president within the four first meetings after their election; unless a further time is allowed, upon an application being made to the Society, in failure of which they shall not be considered as a member of the Society.

FINES.

- The president who is absent on the night when he should take the chair, shall be fined half a crown, unless he has procured another president to supply his place.

All ordinary members who are absent when their names are called, shall be fined sixpence, and no excuse shall be admitted. All members who leave the Society before eleven o'clock, without first publicly asking and obtaining leave of the president, shall be fined sixpence. No more than six can have leave to withdraw on the same evening.

Members who do not deliver in their papers at the appointed time, are, for the first omission, to be fined five shillings; if they should neglect to deliver it at the next meeting, to be fined ten shillings; at the next again, twenty shillings; and if the same neglect shall happen at the fourth meeting, to be expelled.

The secretary neglecting to attend any meeting of the Society, or any committee, is to be fined one shilling, unless he assigns a reason which shall be deemed sufficient by a majority of the Society.

The president shall have a discretionary power of fining any member for irregularity.

All disputes concerning fines shall be referred to, and settled at the next extraordinary meeting.

Such members as refuse to comply with the laws of the Society, or omit paying their fines for three months successively, having official information of such omission from the secretary, are to be expelled.

REGULATIONS

FOR THE PRIZE MEDAL.

I.

THE patrons of the Society shall annually propose a medical or philosophical subject or question, on which every member shall be permitted to give in a dissertation.

II.

The author of the most approved dissertation shall be rewarded with a gold medal, value five guineas.

III.

The merits of the paper shall be determined, and the prize adjudged by a committee, consisting of the six honorary members of the Society.

IV.

The Prize shall be publicly delivered to the successful candidate, by one of the patrons of the Society, on the first meeting in January.

V.

The dissertations, which are to be written in English, but not in the author's hand, shall be delivered to the secretary of the Society, on or before the first of November.

VI.

Each candidate must inscribe his dissertation with a motto, transmitting along with it a sealed letter, bearing the same motto, and containing his name and address, in order that the names of the authors may remain concealed till the prize is adjudged, and the names of all, except the successful candidate, remain unknown, by the dissertation, and letter, which is unopened, being laid aside till called for, or totally destroyed, according to the desire of the writer.

THESIS
FOR THE PRIZE MEDAL.

FOR THE YEAR 1787.

“THE Properties of Pus; particularly those which distinguish it from other substances: The Cases in which it is formed: The Time it's Formation requires; and the Effects it has upon the Body.”

FOR THE YEAR 1788.

“In what Manner are Cavities, whether formed by Suppuration, Wounds, or otherwise filled up? What are the appearances of their filling up properly? In what Manner is the new Skin formed? What are the Symptoms of it's forming properly? In what Cases, and in what manner are the Parts, which were destroyed, restored?”

FOR THE YEAR 1789.

“It is known that Bile consists of Water united with a Matter which is solid; if the Water is evaporated from it by gentle Heat, and that the solid

Part consists of a Substance similar to a vegetable Resin united with another substance : What is that other Substance ; and what Effect has it in the Digestion, or otherwise, on the Constitution ?

FOR THE YEAR 1790.

“ The Nature and Properties of the Fluid which is exhaled from the external Surface of a living Animal-Body, called Perspiration ; and the Advantages the Constitution derives from it's Removal ? ”

FOR THE YEAR 1791.

“ Is the bitter Part of Peruvian Bark different in it's Qualities from the bitter Part of Gentian, Wormwood, and other Vegetables having the Power of strengthening the System. If the Bitter be the same in all these, does it differ from astringent Matter, such as is found in Oak-bark, Tormentel, and such other Plants as contain astringent Juices ; and what are the various Effects of all these Substances in Medicine ? ”

FOR THE YEAR 1792.

“ The best Mode of treating compound Fractures, according to the Injury done to the Limb. ”

FOR THE YEAR 1793.

“ What are the Experiments and Observations which show whether Medicines thrown into the Stomach act on different Parts of the Body, without being carried to these Parts? Or, whether a Medicine must be carried in Substance to the Parts on which it produces an Effect ?”

FOR THE YEAR 1794.

“ In what Cases are Vapours preternaturally contained in the Cavities of the body ; and what Vapours are found in a preternatural State in the different Cavities ?”

FOR THE YEAR 1773.
 What are the Experiments and Observations which show whether Medicines thrown into the Stomach act on distant Parts of the Body, when not being carried to those Parts? Or, whether a Medicine must be carried in Substance to the Parts on which it produces an Effect?

FOR THE YEAR 1774.

In what Cases are Vapours periodically contained in the Cavities of the Body; and what Vapours are found in a permanent State in the different Cavities?

REGULATIONS

FOR THE LIBRARY.

I.

No volume is allowed to be taken out of the library, without an equivalent sum of money for the whole set being deposited; the librarian being accountable for all the books intrusted to his charge.

II.

The books are to be borrowed from the librarian, and returned into the library, during the winter, on Friday evening only, from eight o'clock till half past eight; and in the summer, at such times as are determined upon at the last meeting of the season.

III.

Folios and quartos may be kept a fortnight; all other books only a week.

Any member wishing to keep a book longer than the time allowed, must make an application to the librarian for that purpose; which cannot be complied with, should any other member wish to have the same book.

IV.

If any book be materially injured, it must be replaced, or the deposit forfeited.
