

above-named product at Jacksonville, Fla., alleging that the article had been shipped on or about March 24, 1944, from St. Louis, Mo., by the S. Pfeiffer Manufacturing Co.

Examination showed that the article was a brown liquid consisting essentially of water, alcohol (3.48 percent), and small amounts of plant extractives.

The article was alleged to be misbranded in that the name "Pep-Em-Up" and the following statements in its labeling were false and misleading: (Bottle label) "Stomachic and Stimulant to The Appetite"; (carton) "If this preparation is used according to directions, it will give beneficial results for the purposes or conditions for which it is recommended. The ingredients of this preparation are well and favorably known as meritorious and effective in conditions or for the purposes for which the preparation is recommended. * * * The formula * * * should prove beneficial if used according to instructions." The article would not be capable of fulfilling the promises of benefit stated and implied.

On August 4, 1944, no claimant having appeared, judgment of condemnation was entered and the product was ordered destroyed.

On October 13 and 17, 1944, the United States attorney for the Northern District of Ohio filed libels against 116 bottles of 606 System Tonic at Cleveland, Ohio, alleging that the article had been shipped between the approximate dates of May 19 and August 24, 1944, by the Aetna Chemical Co., Detroit, Mich.

Examination of samples showed that the article consisted essentially of water, alcohol, potassium iodide, and extracts of plant drugs, including a laxative plant drug.

The article was alleged to be misbranded in that the statements which appeared on the label, "Double Strength 606 System Tonic * * * For Tired and Run Down Condition * * * a Spring and Fall Tonic," were false and misleading since the article would not be effective as a system tonic, as a "Spring and Fall Tonic," or for a tired and run-down condition; and it would not constitute a treatment for syphilis, as the name and numerals "606" implied.

On December 19 and 21, 1944, no claimant having appeared, judgments of condemnation were entered and the product was ordered destroyed.

Y., by Akatos, Inc., on or about July 18, 1944.

Analysis showed that the article consisted essentially of mercurous iodide 0.138 grain per suppository, volatile oils, and extracts of plant drugs including hyoscyamus alkaloids.

The article was alleged to be misbranded in that the following statements on the leaflet in the cartons were false and misleading: "Prostatic Rectal Cones * * * for the purpose of relieving the distressing symptoms of enlarged Prostate Gland. * * * The treatment should be continued for at least six months. * * * In severe cases * * *. A marked recession, in the size of the gland, will be noted. * * * The early use of this treatment gives marked relief, and in many cases will avert the necessity of a prostatectomy; or of the distressing punch operation." The article would not be effective in the treatment of prostatic conditions. It was alleged to be misbranded further in that its label failed to state the quantity of mercurous iodide and hyoscyamus alkaloids present in the article.

On April 2, 1945, no claimant having appeared, judgment of condemnation was entered and the product was ordered destroyed.
