FACTS ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

A general conference on world problems of health conservation was called by the League of Red Cross Societies Committee at Cannes, France, in April, 1919. Delegates from five nations — England, France, Italy, Japan, United States — were present. The conference agreed that the combating of the venereal diseases was one of the great outstanding problems of the present century. The holding of regional conferences in various parts of the world to further the organization of practical programs for carrying out approved measures was recommended.

The All-America Conference is the first of these regional conferences and is limited to the venereal diseases as the most urgent of the disease-prevention campaigns to be promoted by this method.

After due consideration, it was deemed best to preserve the unofficial character of such conferences, but at the same time to secure official recognition. This Conference has therefore been called under the auspices of the United States Interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board, the United States Public Health Service, the American Social Hygiene Association, and the American Red Cross, with the coöperation of equivalent federal and volunteer agencies in other countries of the Americas. Official recognition of the importance and timeliness of the Conference has been secured through the exchange of diplomatic notes between the respective governments of the participating countries regarding the organization and purposes of the Conference.

The expenses of the Conference have been met by appropriations of funds from the American Red Cross and the American Social Hygiene Association, the former being the national volunteer organization representing general public interest and participation in health conservation activities, the latter being the national volunteer agency which includes among its activities the specific campaign against the venereal diseases.

The purpose of the Conference is to review past efforts in this field and to make a pronouncement regarding the lines along which future activities should be directed. It is expected that the proceedings and the follow-up use which will be made of the findings of the Conference will stimulate concerted action among the nations participating. Particularly it is expected that within each nation the several states or divisions of government will unite upon a common program of action.

They will meet in morning and afternoon sessions in the Auditorium of the New National Museum to take part in symposiums on the various phases of venereal-disease control, with opportunity for discussion and presentation of individual views. This part of the program has been arranged through the courtesy and under the auspices of the American Social Hygiene Association.

At the evening sessions (also held in the Auditorium of the New National Museum) the recommendations and statements of the proceedings of the General Conference Committee will be forwarded from the Reference Resolutions Committee for discussion and such action as may be taken by the delegates.

The final meeting of the delegates will be held Friday evening, December 10, in joint session with the Conference Committee and the general officers.

3. General Conference Committee

This committee has been appointed by the President of the Conference on nomination by the Administrative Committee.

The General Conference Committee will meet daily in the Hall of Nations of the Hotel Washington, the morning sessions being devoted to study and discussion in small groups of the questions which have been submitted to the Conference or may be submitted by the delegates during their sessions; at the afternoon sessions the findings of the individual groups will be discussed by the full Committee unless otherwise ordered. It is believed that the questions under discussion will subdivide satisfactorily into about twelve groups, e.g., services will be furnished for each group. A small reference library will be provided comprising such books and data as the Administrative Committee believes may be called for. At the close of each afternoon session the Committee will hand to the Reference Resolutions Committee those proposals and resolutions which have been approved for transmission to the delegates.

4. Reference Resolutions Committee

This Committee consists of the President of the Conference, the members of the Administrative Committee and such others as the President may designate.

The Reference Resolutions Committee will meet daily at dinner at the Cosmos Club, 6 to 8 P. M., to prepare a report upon the recommendations and statements of the General Conference Committee for presentation at the evening sessions of the delegates.

The Committee will also consider such recommendations and questions as may arise from the discussions of the delegates for presentation to the General Conference Committee.

After the close of the Conference, the Committee will be continued at the discretion of the President, as the informational agency of the Conference for distributing and explaining its findings to the members and other interested citizens in the participating countries.

The full membership of the Reference Resolutions Committee will not be announced until the convening of the Conference.

5. Executive Officers' Final Meeting

This group, consisting of the President and members of the Administrative Committee, will meet on Saturday morning, 9:30 A. M., at the Cosmos Club to decide on the details of preparing the proceedings of the Conference for distribution and utilization.
